FUN, FAST FACTS

- Taylor B-W is part Maori, English, Scottish, Irish, with a teeny bit of Spanish thrown in.
- Taylor owns a female rescue staffy x mastiff-mixed dog, called Milly.
- Taylor likes to describe herself as an "extroverted-introvert."
- Her favourite artist of all time is Michael Jackson. But, overall, she has always described her taste in music as eclectic and 'genre-less', being a big fan of 90s music, Motown, and orchestral soundtracks.
- She is very passionate about environmental conservation, particularly of endangered species.
- In Kenya and Malawi, Taylor did a spot of wildlife volunteering in 2016, which inspired her to become...
- A fully qualified zoo-keeper, having trained at Taronga Western Plains Zoo in Dubbo, NSW, plus she volunteered in the Primates and Ungulates Department at Sydney's Taronga Zoo.
- For instance, her favourite albums include The Lord Of The Ring soundtracks!
- Whilst following a career in music, Taylor also sings at nursing homes for senior citizens, is a dog-walker and works in childcare - talk about living several lives!
- Taylor was supposed to be a triplet, however the other two unfortunately did not survive in the womb. Taylor almost didn't survive herself, but she is a fighter!
- Taylor released a song at the start of 2018 called 'Spark Off The New Year'. The music video includes edited home videos that were submitted by the owners of rescued pets from around the world. The music video was inspired by, and dedicated to, her late rescue dog, Sasha.
